“ Candy and family,
I had wonderful memories of Ron. Since I babysat “the town cop’s” kids, he liked to give me a lot of grief. One of my favorites I frequently tell is since I was the youngest in my class, and would once in a while end up behind the wheel of someone’s car. Ron always told me he would catch me driving before I had my drivers license, he never did, but the day I got my license he stopped me because “I gunned” it coming around the loop and might have fishtailed a little! Next thing I know he is on my tail with the cherries lit up. He walked up to the car and I handed him my license. He said “hey this thing is still warm”! I think he had been waiting for me to get back to town just so he could pull me over!
Of course there were many times sitting at the bowling alley with my mom and Candy while my Dad and Ron were telling “war stories”!

I told my folks about Ron’s passing - they said to give you their love. All our love and prayers to you.
