“ When I first met Ray in 1964, he was such a smart, handsome young man who always greeted me with a broad smile. He was in graduate school at Iowa State, married my sister, and appeared to have a very bright future. Sadly, within a few years he began to develop schizophrenia. Although this disease had significant effects on him, throughout his life he continued to be motivated to learn and keep his mind active. Although I am an "ex" sister-in-law, we continued to correspond through letters and phone calls, and he was always gracious and upbeat. He would often write and speak of how he had thoughts, hopes and prayers for all of his grandchildren. Carla, Holly, Lindsay, John and Danielle, I am very sorry for your loss. I will miss getting those letters and phone calls from your grandpa.
